The dam owner pays agreed third-party costs for the dam, breeding, insemination and shipping. Any extra charges must be agreed to in writing before they are incurred.

3. Health and breeding arrangements

Each owner confirms they have authority to breed their dog and will disclose known health issues and breeding restrictions. Before service, both owners will exchange available health-screening records and provide negative canine brucellosis results acceptable to the attending veterinarian. The parties will follow the veterinarian's guidance on testing, timing and breeding method. The dam owner will keep the dam away from other intact males throughout the heat cycle and arrange veterinary care for the dam and litter.

4. First pick and puppy transfer

The dam owner will notify the stud owner within 72 hours of birth and share the puppy count, sexes and identifying photos. At 6 weeks, the dam owner will provide updated photos and access to view the litter in person or by video. The stud owner will choose one puppy in writing by 7 weeks of age from all living puppies, including an only puppy. The dam owner may take reservations subject to first pick and may allocate specific puppies only after the stud owner selects or waives first pick in writing.

Puppy handoff

The dam owner will transfer the selected puppy to the stud owner between 8 and 10 weeks of age, subject to applicable law and veterinary clearance, with available veterinary records and applicable registration transfer paperwork when issued. The dam owner will notify the stud owner promptly if the selected puppy dies or cannot be cleared for transfer. The stud owner may choose another available puppy if one is eligible for transfer. The stud owner arranges and pays for pickup or transport unless both parties agree otherwise in writing.

5. No litter or no surviving puppy

If a veterinarian confirms no pregnancy or no puppy is eligible for transfer, the dam owner may request one repeat service with the same pair within 12 months of the initial service, subject to both dogs being available and cleared for breeding. The $1,500 covers the repeat stud service and first pick applies to any resulting litter. The dam owner remains responsible for agreed third-party costs. Once the initial breeding or collection occurs, the stud fee is earned. If the stud owner cancels before service, the stud owner will refund the stud fee in full.

6. Agreement and signatures

Both parties will cooperate with accurate litter registration paperwork if eligible. This document is the full agreement for this breeding. Any change must be agreed to in writing and signed by both parties. Each party should retain a signed copy.
